Primary Election Coming Up Soon

It will be a fight to the finish for sure, as the three candidates fight it out for the Presidential nomination. Ray Bresler still stands unopposed on one ticket, but the Crawfordists and Andersonists are bitterly fighting it out on the other. Senator Tony Horn who has become a great card player, suggested that the states be divided up and each candidate be given an equal amount. Senator Mike Roger, always practical, stated that perhaps the result would be a tie, but he was overruled. Then candidate Crawford accused candidate Anderson of illegally influencing the residents of his states. Anderson promptly fired back that he would not take such an insinuation without proof. The fight came to an open brawl when Crawford disclosed that he had his underground too. Anderson replied that that was a blow below the belt. He then openly declared war on Crawford. Crawford told Anderson that this was unconstitutional and was backed by Mr. Knudson. Anderson ignored the comment and told Crawford to name the weapons. Crawford chose jellybeans on roller skates at forty paces. Anderson accepted and the big day arrived. The jelly beans were lined up and both candidates were warming up. All at once Supreme Court Judge Michael Tuft arrived and announced that the whole business was unconstitutional and besides all the people in New York were moving into Rhode Island. So Crawford and Anderson shook hands and postponed the duel till another day.

Famous Scientist Disproves Own Theory

We are sorry to inform you that the discovery made by the noted scientist John Ghiselli has been disproved today, and by none other than the man himself. Mr. Ghiselli had evolved a scheme whereby he could view the inhabitants of Mars with his powerful telescope. He described them as being a sort of blue-black all over with 6 legs and several pairs of beady red eyeballs. They were very clever, said Ghiselli, and they could walk up the side of a building quite easily. The scientist and his assistant, Win Wang, were both excited and spent almost two hours with the reporters, Richard Von Bargon, Mike Francisco, Alexander Guthrie. A little later Mr. Ghiselli was cleaning his equipment and he was dismayed to find that there was a common black and on the end of the telescope, and he had just been looking at the and magnified umpteen times. The scientist is now in a state of mental shock and will spend a lot of time at the Happy Dale Sanitarium. Dr. Ralph Young says that Ghiselli's case is a rather acute one, but we are confident that he will recover.

FLASH! A Red Hot Exclusive

By Linnie Bock

The great Algebra Haters Club formed back in '56 is going to have a huge reunion at Miss Sue Wight's house. For many years now the members have been busily collecting all the algebra books in circulation. They have robbed the libraries, plundered the schools, and even robbed the Algebra Teachers' Rest Home. At the reunion, a grand prize of an automatic cosmic ray pencil will be presented to the person who has collected the most books. We have heard rumors that John B. Richards and Margie Anderson have a very good chance.

After the ceremony Ken Revzan will prepare a gigantic bonfire and Sylvia Le Page will light it. Then all the members will have a wild time throwing in the books and eating yami yogurt and oatmeal mush topped with olives.

There will be some special awards called "a2" given to the best algebra haters for outstanding courage and bravery. Our underground secret service, the "Worm Patrol," informs us that Sally George, Liz Wohletz, Rob Casselberry, and Fred Fitzgerald are to receive rewards.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN BY MONI GATEWOOD

Q.—I'm going steady with the captain of the football team but I'm afraid he doesn't like me. He spends more time with his football than he does with me.

—Betty Strathman
A.—I suggest that since he is so disloyal, you better break up with him. When you do, please let me know.

Q.—My husband beats me every night. What shall I do?

—Lois Ulvang
A.—Stop gambling with him.

Q.—I'm in love with the man up the street and the man down the street is in love with me, and my sister is in love with him.

OLYMPICS AT PAPOOSE GORGE

1976 Winter Olympics were held recently. They were a crowning success. The Russian team, who were runners-up in the toboggan race, happily crowned the USA's team with their toboggan. Wishing to be fair and square, the USA's team crowned them back. It was proposed that they shake hands afterward, but as none of the team members was in condition to do so, it was postponed. The team: Larry McDonough, Pat McLaughlin,

Alexis Verhoogen, Randy Cramer, will be spending a little time (about 9 months) in the hospital, but they have nothing on the toboggan sleds. All that is left is a heap of splinters. This is most alarming because, said Prof. Roland Yourd today, "We can't even tell which are Russian splinters and which are ours!"

One of the most daring spectacular events was the ski jump in which Linnie Bock took first place. She said today that the reason for her exceptional speed was that she used to jump off Marin Ave. so as not to be late for school. When told that she has made a record of one minute flat, she remarked that she must be getting rusty; she could never have gotten upstairs before the second bell. The second skier out was really the most graceful. He soared way out over the slope, "like a bird," remarked Charlene Akers, a bystander. Unfortunately, it was discovered that Miss Akers was right. Bill Ambrose's shoelace came untied and he tripped before he got out the gate. He was allowed another chance and had his other shoe lace not come untied, he might have won the cup. Bill has now enrolled for a course in shoe lace tying at the Garfield Nursery School.

Hints for Modern Homemakers

It is most economical to sell your house in March and buy it back in May.
—Gary Debell, Bartlett Hills, Hollywood, Calif.

If you put bricks on the children's heads, they won't grow so fast.

—Adrienne Kimura, Kookamooga (or is it Kookamagoo?)

If you like to read in the bathtub, it is best not to put any water in the tub.
—Jim Baylor, Poker Flats.

It is best to be insured when the house burns down.

—Robin Paxton, Hernando's Hideaway.

If you want to find out whether your guppies are boys or girls, here is a foolproof method. Just add a little sodium hydroxide to the water. Then if he floats to the top, he is a boy, and if she floats to the top, she is a girl.

—Lois Talbott, Davy Jones' Locker.

Don't take no wooden Nicoles!

Last night a singular event occurred, one which had reverberations all over the country: the cast of the H. M. S. Pinafore reunited for a grand performance of their operetta. Just for color, the setting was the old Garfield Auditorium, which was used for the original performance. The house was packed; there were three men hanging from the balcony rail by their suspenders. Mrs. Kressman didn't look a day older; she could tickle the ivories just as fast or faster than her former students remembered. When the gold curtain drew back, there they were: the sailors in their blue jenkins, complete with long black sideburns. Mari Erickson at last had found a pair of ducks that fit her. The captain was exactly the same as the cast remembered, except that he lost the "cat of nine tails" and had to use one of Sir Joseph's shoulder decorations. Sir Joseph didn't mind, it kept falling off anyway. Buttercup looked so much like Buttercup that Buttercup almost fooled Buttercup herself. Even Deadeye was more triangular than usual. Ralph Rackstraw was still a highbrow Englishman, but when Josephine's parasol collapsed in the middle of Act II, there was a scene behind it that the audience missed. Josephine really outdid herself, though, and as her lovely voice floated across the footlights, it was suddenly May, 1956, and the cast was 9th graders again. By the time the final curtain came down, the audience was hoarse with cheering. Mrs. Kressman was radiant with excitement. She said she was having the time of her life. The cast promised to reunite again in 1996 (?)

Extra! Great Scientist, Val Duel, Discovers How Sound Barrier Came to Be

CRASH!

It was the fourth time the wall of Jupiter's domain cracked and tumbled to the ground. Yes, it was that unruly God of Noise, Clatterus, sounding off again. The vibrant sound waves shook all of Mt. Olympus. It was then that Jupiter, king of the gods, knew that he must put a stop to this ear-splitting, wall-cracking din. When Clatterus called a mere, "Hey, Jupe!" women's dresses blew flat against them, the earth trembled, and walls fell down to the earth.

Jupiter pondered and pondered over his problem, even losing three nights of sleep. Finally the thought struck him! Why not build an invisible wall, so strong that even the tremendous vibrations of Clatterus' hullabaloo could not pierce its invincible foundation? The wall was constructed, and Clatterus was "grounded" down to earth where he could holler all he wanted to without creating a major earthquake. And even to this day, the sound barrier of Jupiter's still exists. But now, Jupiter is faced with another problem: jet planes. Every now and then the walls of his home crack and tumble to the ground! And who knows? Someday he will devise a way to outsmart the modern sound-barrier-breakers!

Problems of the Day

As summer is coming on and since the  $\sqrt{\text{summer}} = \text{swimming}^2$ , we decided to have something appropriate in this column. Here it is:

If a swimming pool holds 23,000 gallons of water and has 3 pipes, one filling and two emptying, how many lily pads are there in the deep end?

For the more intelligent genius, we included a slightly more advanced problem:

A swimming pool is 30 ft. by 60 ft., and it holds 45,000 gallons. There are 3,857,291 tiles on the bottom. There is one pipe to empty and one to fill. Both are rusty and full of holes. If the diving board is 5 ft. above the water, should you wear a small, medium or large cap in the pool?

ANSWER: Some of the steps may seem a little remote to you, but we assure you, there is no other way.

OLD LADY BOCK'S GOSSIP COLUMN

QUESTION: Is it true that singer Shari Evans wore a kelly green pillbox coat with a blue dress when she drove along Main Street in her crimson red Cadillac on her way to a cocktail party at the Brazilian room where the cook, Johnathon B. Richards of Berkeley, had made a chiffon cake in her honor?

ANSWER: I'm afraid you heard the story the wrong way because I was there at the party and know what really happened. Miss Evans fainted when she ate the blue sponge cake made by Johnathon B. Richards of Berkeley. Then she took some kelly green pills and recovered. Mr. Richards turned crimson red when he discovered that he had made a real blue sponge, due to a few miscalculations in cooking.

QUESTION: I heard from private sources that the hockey world champion, Mr. Pat McLaughlin, told Sandy Lewis the secret of his success. He said that he practices hitting the puck with top end of the hockey stick instead of the bottom end.

ANSWER: It seems to me that your private sources aren't very accurate. Pat McLaughlin is the state-wide baseball champion who plays second base on the "Down With Van" team. He does practice with the tip of the bat instead of the base, but he uses jaw breakers instead of balls.

QUESTION: A friend of mine informed me that Miss Charlene Akers, the best dressed lady in California, got lost in one of her many clothes closets. I believe it was number 18, the Bermuda section. At any rate, she was lost for five days and when found she told authorities that she had existed on pink and blue Bermuda socks. She says they are quite tasty.

ANSWER: That's about the way I heard it except she did have a Hershey bar with her. I heard that she rolled the socks around it and took very small bites. The other day she served them at a tea at her mansion and I understand that the guests left in quite a rush.

QUESTION: I read in True Confessions Magazine that jockey Mike Roger, whom all the horses love, tried to cross the Mohave Desert on his oldest nag called Keitho. The article said that he failed because his nag kept eating on the way and it was too expensive. Also because of the intense heat Mr. Roger had to constantly apply sun lotion and his skin eventually turned lime green.

ANSWER: I think you need a little straightening out. For one thing never depend on True Confessions Magazine. My dog knows more than they do. Mike Roger is a movie star who goes riding on his thoroughbred horse, Keitho. He turned green when some crazy scenery jerks on the set spilled a bucket of lime green paint on him. Once he did make a trip across the Mohave Desert, but by plane. I've heard he likes the stewardesses.

QUESTION: Is it true that the famous ballerina, Marianna Weiss, accidentally dropped one of the stage lights on one of her fans called Sylvia Lepage. I heard that she got carried away in one of her dances and the audience went wild, causing a stage light to fall off. Then she accidentally dropped it on a screaming fan called Sylvia Lepage.

ANSWER: You are very mistaken. Although she is an accomplished ballerina, Miss Weiss is known for her talent as a pianist. In one of her performances a fan called Sylvia Lepage kept begging for one of the piano keys. Miss Weiss very gracefully tossed her one of the red roses off the stage scenery.

And an added feature—An awful orange ooblick cartoon!

The face of the Grand Canyon has been scaled! The expedition led by Jim Hemphill and including Myron Artist, John Pecl, Danny Leon, Art Andrews, Vic Coffield, was finally successful on the third try. The first time, John Peel, who was carrying the food, laid it down to tie his shoe, and when he looked up, it was back at the bottom of the gorge. The second time they built a fire on a ledge, and the warden, John DeVries, came around and took a shot at them. He pierced the canteen of water, and they had to turn back again. The third try is always the charm, said Jim Hemphill later. They had to hack out each step they took and climb it like a ladder. There is now a ladder up the face of the Grand Canyon, which may be used for future reference. The last evening they found themselves on a sheer face at bedtime. So they hacked out a ledge to sleep on. This ledge took them 3 nights and 2 days, but finally they got to sleep. The climbers had cut out the ledge so artistically that Mike Ongerth proclaimed it a priceless masterpiece, and it was removed and taken to the Metropolitan Museum of Art (for future reference).
